

California ISO
Your Link to Power

Welcome and Thank You for Attending

California Independent System Operator (California ISO) Southern California Open House

We want you to learn about the California ISO, its function, and its role in transmission planning.

We also want to learn from you, your thoughts, concerns and ideas about how to keep the lights on and foster renewable energy in Southern California.

What is the purpose of the Open House?

We want to “shed light” on the process of transmission development in California. Recent projects proposed in Southern California highlighted the need for us to share our role with the public and inform you of opportunities to participate.

This forum is not to endorse or debate any one particular transmission project. The California ISO proposes regional grid solutions that may include all or part of the projects proposed thus far.

How can you get the most out of today?

Participate in our self-guided tour on issues related to Transmission Project planning, analysis, and siting.

Each booth focuses on a specific aspect of transmission project development and highlights where you can get involved.

Visit the booths of interest to you and share your thoughts and comments on the flip-charts.

Feel free to ask questions of the California ISO staff at any time.

Thank you for participating!